

Table 1: Cases from the “The Right to Privacy”

Case	brief description	decision
Abernethy v. Hutchinson, 3 L. J. Ch. 209 (1825)	Surgeon seeks to restrain the publication of “unpublished” lectures that he had in fact delivered at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London to “pupils”	could not publish, for profit
Prince Albert v. Strange, 1 McN. & G. 25 (1849)	recognizing a right of property in the etchings	restraining Strange from publishing a catalogue describing Prince Albert’s etchings
Tuck v. Priestner, 19 Q.B.D. 639 (1887)	Had a picture, agreed to make a certain amount of copies...	breach of contract. to make a certain number of copies
Pollard v. Photographic Co., 40 Ch. Div. 345 (1888)	a photographer who had taken a lady's photograph under the ordinary circumstances was restrained from exhibiting it,	“the court, while expressly finding a breach of contract and of trust sufficient to justify its interposition, still seems to have felt the necessity of resting the decision also upon a right of property”

Note: (Warren & Brandeis, 1890)